DEDICATION MESSAGE

We, the senior class 1963, dedicate our yearbook, The 33 Mirror, to Mrs. Margaret Davis. Her spirit of help-understanding, sympathetic guidance, and generous service will always remain and sustain us through years.

Mrs. Margaret Davis graduated from Bachelor of Arts Degree, in 1942. She has taught in Columbia: Maine; Sherman, Maine; and is in her fifth year at Patten Academy, as language-teacher.

She is the wife of Howard Davis of Sherman Station and they have four children—seventeen, Virginia, fourteen; and Charles, seven.

Principal's Message

Congratulations, Class of 1963! The faculty and students of Patten Academy offer their best wishes upon the occasion of your graduation. We indeed hope that your years at Patten Academy have prepared you well for the commencement you now face.

For some of you formal education is now concluded while for others you have merely begun the intellectual pursuits. In either event education should and will influence your actions and behavior. Keep in mind the responsibilities you must assume and the influence you hold over future generations. Continue to be honest, sincere, and informed citizens.

It has been a pleasure for me to have served as your principal during your last two years in school. I know you, respect you, and expect great accomplishments by you. Good luck!

The money earned by the Student Council is used to buy all equipment used at the Academy and in extracurricular activities unless donated.

This year we started the year with $185.55 from which we bought six girls' uniforms and twelve cross country warm up suits.

We intend to buy warm up jackets for the Varsity Basketball team, new Junior Varsity jerseys, and a record player to be used both at the gym and at school.

We were not able to attend the annual State Student Council convention this fall, but we hope to attend the regional conference held at Limestone this spring.

National Honor Society

The Patten Academy Chapter of the National Honor Society was revived in 1961 by Mr. Ross S. Holt. Last year's officers were chosen from the five remaining members after the class of 1962 graduated. The officers elected were:

THE DOORKNOB

I am alone, all alone, in a hostile world of misunderstanding. Because no one could understand my mother, they killed her. They killed her because they were too busy to salvage a few minutes of their precious time to sit down and listen to her. She is dead now and nothing can be done to bring her back. All I can do is relate her pathetic story to you in hopes that someone will understand why she did it.

My mother's maiden name was Patricia McTarland. She was a beautiful woman, with her brown hair, and sparkling blue eyes. She was always so carefree, always bubbling over with fun and laughter. She was everything that any man could wish for.

My father's name was Paul Hogan. He was a lazy man. He didn't care if the world flourished or not, just that it moved was good enough for him. He was such a contrast to my mother.

Mom and Dad met for the first time in New York. They married a month later. I don't see what she saw in him, but she must have loved him because she stood by him for so long.

They moved to Vermont, and Dad bought a farm on the outskirts of a small town. It wasn't a very big farm, just big enough to provide them with enough income to get by.

Mom hated this place the first time she laid eyes on it. There was no social life here, and the house itself was rundown and sordid. She spent the next twelve years in obscurity.

This change greatly affected Mom's personality. She was no longer the gay and carefree woman she used to be. But she didn't complain about the house, or even talk about moving. The only thing that kept her there was her love for Dad, and her little retreat down behind the farm. It was beautifully situated beside a little brook. If you listened you could hear it singing, as the cool, clear water made its way down over the pebbles. Trees surrounded the brook so it wasn't visible until you were almost upon it. Mom always came here, when she was upset and tired. She said that only to look at that peaceful little brook made her feel like a new person.

Mom was a very efficient housekeeper. Everything was clean, and in its proper place. This was where the contrast began. Dad was so dilatory about ever fixing things. His motto was, "There is always a tomorrow."

There were so many things that Dad wouldn't fix that annoyed Mother. But the thing that became unbearable was a minor item. It was the doorknob on the door that led from the kitchen to the shed. She went through that door about fifty times a day. The darn thing was temperamental, it might go for weeks and be all right, but periodically it would start coming off in your hand, mainly Mother's hand. I saw her so many times with that doorknob clenched in her hand. With fire in her eyes, she would say to Dad "Hogan, will you fix this doorknob!"

"Sure Mom," he'd say, "I'll get to it first thing in the morning."

But Pa never got to it.

No one understands. They say, "She killed because of a doorknob?" But I understand. Twelve long years of a doorknob in your hand, is enough to make any woman stab a man.

GRADUATION

Tonight is the formal parting of our ways.
For years we have looked forward to this day.

But now it is upon us
and we think with a heavy heart,
of the few more days we'll be together before we have to part.

But this is no time to be sad
for we are nearer our goal.
For education is understanding and understanding is knowing the soul.

THE SPARROW

The rain was falling,
the sky was gray,
A dreary, cheerless,
cloudy day.
Then on the limb of a nearby tree
A song sparrow lit and looked at me.
He started and sang so
pure and clear
I knew for sure that spring was here.
Away he flew, his good deed done.
His song took the place
of a ray of sun.

DARKNESS

The night is come.
With all its grace,
The twinkling stars
Reflect its face.

The bright yellow moon
Shines down from above.
The evening is still
Save the call of the dove.

Still the moon rises up
Through the glittering stars.
The peaceful silence of the night.
Covers all the earth's scars.

For man has not dominion
O'er the dark or the light.
Long before there was man
There was God and the night.

DREAMS

Billy was strong and young
He grew up straight, tall, and honest.
His Father had taken him fishin' and huntin'.
His Mother borne him in the blood and strength of her youth
Nursed him and mended his clothes.
They had laughed with him when he was a baby.
Cried with him when he cried.

LESSONS LEARNED FROM LIFE

When I was a young man and
in my prime,
I thought of having fun most
all of the time;
I was carefree and happy and
most of the time gay,
But I knew that those fun
times would soon fade away.

I didn't have lovers and
hardly a friend,
But I said I'd be happy
right to the end;
I'm not really happy and
my troubles are strong,
They warned that my fun
times would not last long.

THE TRUTH ABOUT P. A. BOYS

The boys of P. A. are tall and slim;
Each one thinks the girls
fall for him.
Quite a lady's man, so
each one thinks;
But to us gals their technique stinks!
They blink in an astonishing way,
And then wonder why we
don't faint away.
They lasso in vain with the same age-old line
And wonder why it fails,
time after time.
Their doubled-hitched
tongues and back-
stabbing lies,
Make them wonderful persons in spite of disguise.

Martena Lyons '67

Remembered his first tooth and his first girl.
Remembered how he looked when he was mad or glad.
Remembered what his teachers said.
Felt warm inside when he was happy.
They had dreams for him.
He was good they said.
But he died - They died a little too.

Leslie Dickinson '68

My life has been wasted, the best part of it spent.
My few friends kept saying, "Why don't you repent?"
But now I am penniless, I don't even have shoes.

If I could live my life over,
I'd make some reforms.
I'd live a cleaner life and
have a lot fewer storms;
But time is something I can never regain.
I am stuck . . . stuck with all of these years of terrible pain.

THE SEA

A thousand white-capped mountain peaks
Combine in perfect harmony, to form
A wave whose height may soar and soar,
'Till it breaks with a roar on the rocky shore.

The wave thus spent, has no form,
And must return to the monotonous sea.
The lives of all men, like the waves of the sea,
Beat on forever toward Eternity.

THOMAS

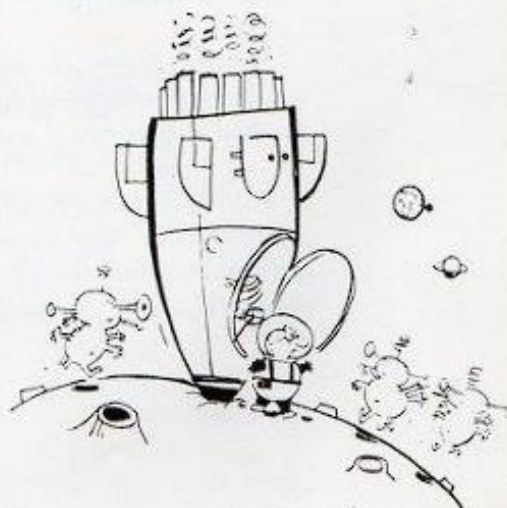

Thomas grew up in a small Missouri town
The blood of youth ran hot in his veins.
He watched the smoke curl up the sky.
He fished and hunted in the forests and fields.
Ran, sang, and despaired in the town.
He loved the town and its people.
One day he fell in love with one of its girls.
They were married in the town's white church.
Toiled and sweated on the land.
The wind and the rain in their faces; they became one.
They were honest and kind.
Went to the white church on Sunday.
And listened to the sermons.
Brought up their children in love and strength.
They passed from youth to old age
In the town they loved, with the people they loved.
They lie now in the earth they tilled.
It has been so for ages.
Dust to dust on the earth, births, loves, and deaths.
It will be so for ages to come on the land.

Where one can hide and kiss his girl
Or are you flat and barren?

THE POWER OF POSITIVE PERSUASION

The season for basketball is starting, and a sketch of the methods of getting to the games would not be out of place. There are two methods commonly practiced: direct and indirect. The direct method is surely the most tiring, and this is how one goes about it.

Step one: Get parents in a sympathetic mood - tell them that the teachers pick on you, little boys throw snowballs at you, and that the principal bites you on the little finger every chance he gets.

Step two: Have a reasonably good rank on an English paper handy to show them . . . this will serve as your excuse that you really don't need to stay home and study.

Final step: Begin at approximately 4:30 to beg - "Huh, please can I go to the game? Everyone else is going - please can I go? Huh, please, huh?" Keep this up for just about two hours - by that time you will either have succeeded in gaining permission to go, or will have gotten yourself grounded for the following six months!

The indirect method is really more of a sneak method than anything. It requires a few more brains than the direct method, and also requires the ability to control your facial expressions. The latter is needed most of all, as I will explain later. The method goes in this manner.

Step one: Come home directly from school. Be sure that you have a good deal of books - this is just for special appeal to the sympathies.

Step two: Sit down immediately and study furiously for the next two hours. If anyone tries to make conversation, heave a big sigh, and say, "Gee, I'd like to talk, but this homework has just got to be done."

Step three: Refuse supper. This is one of your most important steps in your campaign, as it sets Mother to worrying that you are devoting too much time to your studies - to even refuse supper. Think of that!

At about 6:15, slam all your books, stretch, and say, "There, I've got all my homework done, and believe me, I worked on that math! No, guess I'll study a couple advance assignments - nothing better to do."

Step five: At 6:30 a pal will burst in (all of which has been carefully planned and pre-rehearsed). The conversation will go like this: "Hey, did you know that there's a game in Sherman tonight? Peter just called . . . he's taking a carload down, and he wants you to go . . . especially."

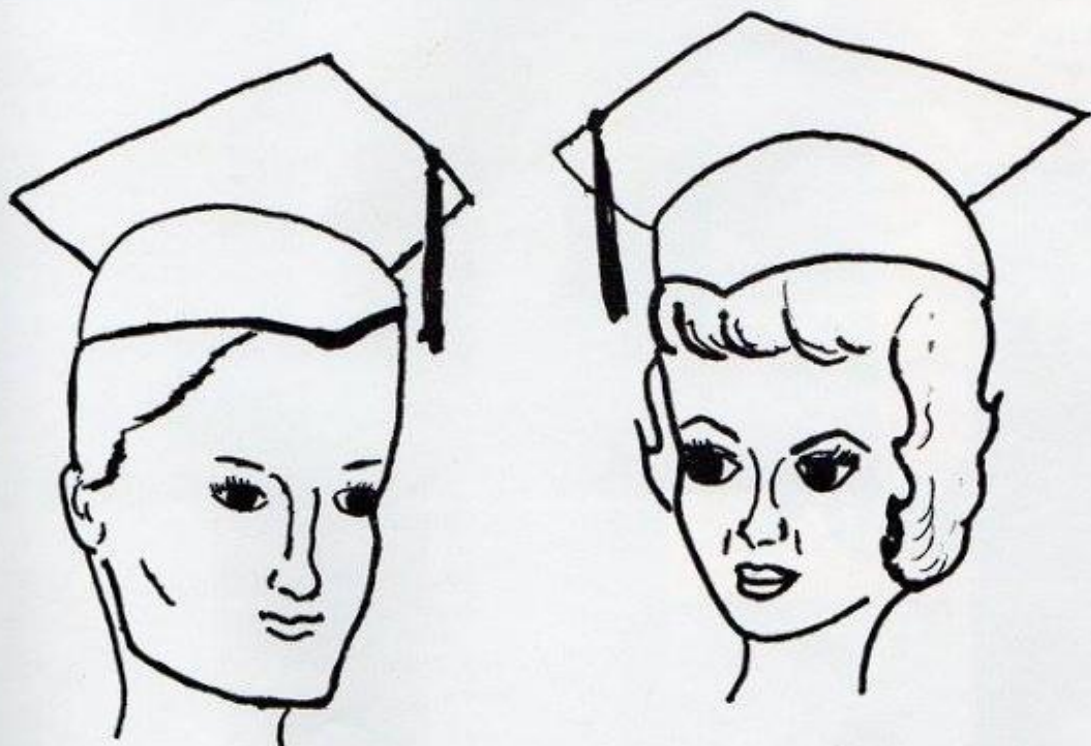

"Gee, I'd like to go . . . I've got my homework all done . . . but guess I'll stay home and study next week's spelling words. (Or something equally simple . . . like a psychology thesis!)

At this, your mother (who is bound to be eavesdropping) will enter. She will say, (we hope) "Now, I think you should go. You've been studying for three hours now, and you really should get out and around. You go get ready, while I get you something to eat."

You will remember that I said you should be able to control your facial expressions. It is at this time you need it, as you want to keep a proper expression on your face as you triumphantly walk out the door.

One can choose either method . . . you may decide for yourself which method would work better in your own personal case.

The Seven Wonders of Patten Academy

Idea borrowed from 1913 Mirror

First Wonder - We wonder if the junior class will ever wake up.

Second Wonder - We wonder if Mr. C. Jones' briefcase really came filled with bubble gum.

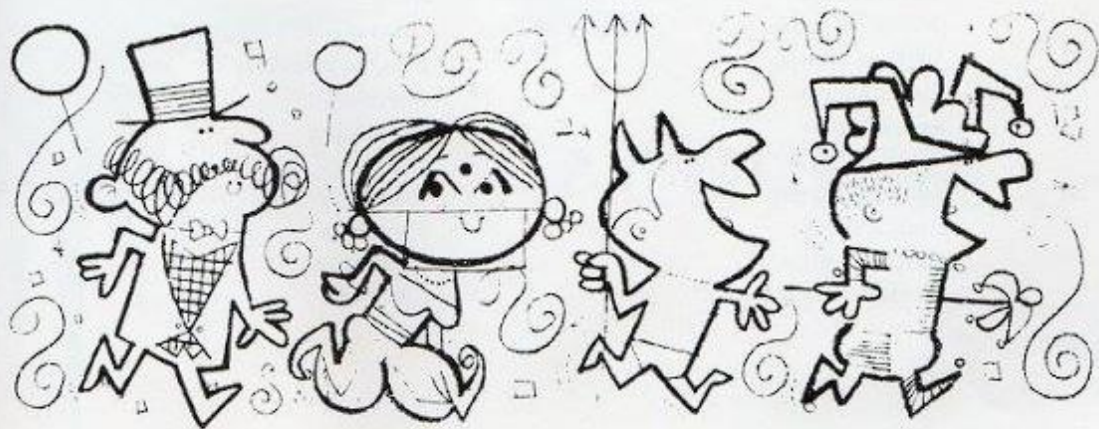

Third Wonder - We wonder if the "Mirror" staff ever lost any sleep over the Mirror.

Fourth Wonder - We wonder if A. Corriveau is any relation to Goliath.

Fifth Wonder - We wonder if Mr. Jones thinks it's well to be wise or wise to be well.

Sixth Wonder - We wonder why there isn't a "B-O-Y-S" sign on the boys' basement.

Seventh Wonder - We wonder how long before Mr. Fenlason will have seven thousand dollars.

Varsity Basketball

The Patten Academy Eagles opened the 1962-63 season with one returning letterman from a squad which reached the Eastern Maine Class M Basketball Tournament in 1962. With the loss of seven seniors, the season was a building year with the varsity squad being composed of a majority of underclassmen.

The inexperienced Eagles dropped their first three games of the season by close margins. Lee Academy and Mattawamkeag each gained a four point verdict with the games being tied at one point in the last quarter.

A typical Island Falls-Patten game took place in Patten with the Elks capturing a 65-60 verdict. The game was tied many times with the lead changing hands every few minutes. Patten led at the end of the first and third quarters and Island Falls regained the lead at half time and at the end of the game. With the loss of Don Adams via the foul route in the fourth period and the inability to set their sights on the basket in the last frame, the Eagles suffered their fourth defeat in six starts.

Patten absorbed two of its worst beatings in many years when Sherman, K. V. L. Champs, defeated the Eagles 80-33 and Island Falls came back to hand them a 74-32 beating. Both teams later went on to win berths in the Eastern Maine M and S Tournaments respectively.

Mattawamkeag arrived in Patten fresh from an upset of Island Falls and were looking forward to clinching a top spot in the K. V. L. when the Eagles, hungry for a victory, eased out a hair-raising 48-46 victory.

The Eagles took to the road and were unsuccessful in jumping into the win column as Ricker came from behind with three minutes left in the ball game to edge the hapless Eagles 53-52. The Patten Visitors gained a comfortable six point lead going into the final quarter, but the inability to score a basket from the floor proved to the guests undoing.

The Oakfield quintet opposed Patten in the final game of the season for both clubs and a hot handed Eagle combine outscored the scrappy host team 90-34.

The Eagles ended the season with a 6 win 12 loss record. The high scorers of the season were Armand Corriveau with 282 total points and a 15.7 per game average. Donald Adams with 210 and an 11.7 average, and Ronnie Howes with 198 and an 11.0 per game average. Patten's opponents scored 1,019 points to the Eagles 1,007, their (opponents') per game average was 56.6 to our 55.9.

Junior Varsity Basketball

The Eagles started off very slowly, dropping the first five games into the hands of their opponents. After a one-sided victory over Oakfield the boys went on a winning rampage and finished up the season by winning twelve of their last fourteen games.

The tall Elks from Island Falls almost proved to be the undoing of the scrappy quintet from P. A. as Larry Torrey scored a foul shot to put the game into an overtime. Baskets by LeRoy Willett, Ken Bates and Larry Torrey ended the contest in our favor, with 21, 12, and 15 points respectively for the three boys above.

Close games and overtimes followed the P. A. squad wherever they went it seemed. When the Lee Pandas visited Patten the gun went off with the score tied, 56-all. The visiting Pandas were outdone by tremendous rebounding by Phil Nicholson and LeRoy Willett, who also poured 31 points through the hoop, and excellent foul shooting by Ken Bates and John Birmingham, as the game ended 61-58.

Ricker proved outstanding opponents in both games as did Howland but out rebounding of taller opponents by Willett, DeTour, and Torrey plus a good eye for the hoop by Willett and Bates led the team through to victory.

A 73 point output--highest of the season--proved too much for the Future Farmers as they went down in defeat 73-16. Oakfield showed much improvement as they faced Patten in the final game of the season. With every man seeing plenty of action, the Eagles finished the season with a 56-37 victory and ending with a 12-7 record.

The Patten Academy 1962-63 edition of the girls' basketball team consisted of five freshmen, four sophomores, three juniors, and three seniors. The managers were Nancy Glidden and Kay Grant.

SEASONS HIGHLIGHTS

Patten finally broke into the win column as they edged Island Falls 29-28 in a game which was played close to the final buzzer. The Falls held a commanding 11-4 lead at the end of the first quarter but the fast moving Patten girls cut the visitor's lead to 3 points at half time. With all six Patten players scoring in the third period the Eagles went ahead by a 26-24 margin going into the fourth quarter. A fourth quarter filled with jump balls and many traveling violations provided a very small point output by both teams as the Eagles pulled the game out of the fire, 29-28.

Patten scored its FIRST win over Hodgdon in eight years as the fired up Eagles handed Hodgdon their first league defeat of the season by 33-24 score. Leading by 17 points going into the final period, the Hodgdon girls made a tremendous comeback as they out-scored the visitors 10-3, but it wasn't enough. Becky Morse led the scoring with 18 points. Linda Anderson played a fine floor game at guard as did Phyllis Giles in her first game as a starter.

Patten came THIS far from pulling its second upset in as many games as the Sherman girls edged a fine Patten team 34-33. A shot by Linda Hannigan in the final seconds of the game that bounced several times and then hung on the rim before falling off kept 200 pairs of eyes glued to the basket.

In the first game against Hodgdon, Ricky Lyons, who had pitched eight innings and held the Hodgdon nine to one run, left the game with the score tied 1-1. He was replaced by Guy Giles and later Kerry Birmingham in the last of the ninth inning. In the top of the ninth inning Patten scored two runs and went into the bottom of the ninth inning leading 3-1. Hodgdon scored three runs in the last of the inning on a single, a hit batter, and four walks.

In the first Island Falls game at home, the Eagles tromped the Elks 6-1. Kerry Birmingham pitched all seven innings for the victory backed by three home runs, two by Wesley Getchell and one by Armand Corriveau.

The big batters for Patten included Guy Giles, lead off batter; Burtt McIntire, Kerry Birmingham, Armand Corriveau, Wesley Getchell, and Donnie Adams. The pitching records were Giles 0-2, Birmingham 1-3, Corriveau 1-0, Getchell 1-0, and Lyons 1-1.

Senior graduates include Kerry Birmingham, Guy Giles, Wesley Getchell, and Burtt McIntire. The '63 season should be good with returning veterans Adams, Lyons, Corriveau, McNally, Hunter, and Dickinson, plus a talented freshman group.

Curtis Campaign

The Curtis Campaign takes place in the fall and is the main source of funds for the purchase of all athletic uniforms and equipment.

The campaign was very successful this year because of our advisor Mr. White and the industrious students at Patten Academy. We had a total sales of $903.80 with the school realizing $303.30 of this as profit.

Linda Anderson and Armand Corriveau were the general co-managers. David Broadbent, Rodney Howes, and Linda Porter assisted them. Each class had a boy and girl captain. These were: 8th grade - Susan Guptill and Leon Roy; 9th grade - Betty Huckaby and Larry Torrey; 10th grade - Charlotte White and Rodney Nightingale; 11th grade - Harriette Foster and Phil Nicholson; 12th grade - Kay Grant and Keith Hunter.

The campaign was set up on a competitive basis. There were four main contests. They were: 1. The contest between Sherman, Patten, and Island Falls, in which we were beaten out by Island Falls with a margin of less than $.05 per person. The prize for this was an official basketball which was presented to them. 2. The contest between the classes for which the sophomores copped the $25 prize plus the stuffed animal mascot. 3. The contest between the students which was won by a sophomore, Phyllis Crouse, with a total sale of $41.82. Others winning prizes were Linda Porter, Lawrence Violette, Dennis Boone, Jennifer Bates, and Paulette McManus. 4. Prize Speaking

Marilyn Hall and David Broadbent

Due to a change in schedule, the K. V. L. Speaking Contest for 1963 was held this year in November at Hodgdon.

Marilyn Hall and David Broadbent were the two contestants chosen to represent Patten Academy. The other local contestants were Judy McPhee, Linda Porter, Charlotte White, Rodney Howes, Leslie Dickinson, and Linda Hannigan.

David Broadbent and Laurel Rideout of Mattawamkeag won first place, with Cynthia O'Roak of Sherman and Theodore Pettengill of Island Falls winning second place.

Last year the K. V. L. Speaking Contest was held at Oakfield with Marilyn Hall and David Broadbent as contestants from Patten.

Marilyn Hall and Peter Cummings of Sherman won first prize, with Cynthia O'Roak of Sherman and James Dyer of Oakfield winning second place. Sherman won the K. V. L. team trophy given to the boy and girl contestants who accumulate the highest number of points.

The Play

Last year, due to a flu epidemic that swept the school, the Class of '63 was chosen to represent Patten Academy in the finals at Sherman.

Their play was "Cloudburst" and the cast included Leslie Dickinson, Marilyn Hall, Kay Grant, Carole Tarr, Donald Adams and Armand Corriveau. The prompters were Pauline Crommett and Mavis Pelletier. The stage managers were James Harvey, Gerald Harrington and Danny Campbell.

Our competitors at Sherman were Oakfield High School who presented "Legend of the Lake" and Sherman High School whose play was "Senor Freedom."

Sherman High School emerged victorious with Peter Cummings of Sherman and Kay Grant of Patten named Best Actor and Actress for the K. V. L. Contest.

Band

The Patten-Sherman Band consists of eighty-five members. This year marks the largest group ever in the history of the two schools.

The next few years promise to be as good as the last, since there are two-hundred and twenty-five musicians in the school area.

The band plans to attend the Northern Maine Festival at Limestone, on May 11, 1963, and they hope to perform as well as they did last year in May, at Madawaska, where they received a rating of "SUPERIOR."

The annual Spring Concert will be held in Patten on the 26th of April, 1963. Anyone attending is assured of an enjoyable time.

Boys' and Girls' State

Boys' and Girls' States were held on the University of Maine and the Colby Campuses respectively. The representative to Girls' State was Linda M. Anderson, sponsored by the Student Council and the representative to Boys' State was Leslie A. Dickinson, Jr. sponsored by the Parent Teachers Association. The tuition to Girls' State was thirty-five dollars and that to Boys' State was forty dollars.

Both Boys' and Girls' States were dedicated to the learning of the local and state governmental processes through actual participation. Girls' State was divided into six towns and three counties organized under the mythical state of Dirigo. Boys' State was organized into eight towns and four counties under the same state name, Dirigo.

The representatives from the individual schools stayed at Girls' and Boys' State five days, the girls being there from June 15th-21st and the boys, from June 17th-22nd.

During this time, the participants (325 at Girls' State, and 480 at Boys' State) elected such town officials as selectmen, a school board, and discussed and voted on bills brought forth in an imaginary town report. They voted on such important issues as a new school building and the placing of new street lights.

On the county level each town nominated candidates for county officer and they were voted upon in a county election.

On the state level the boys and girls in each respective state were divided into two parties, Nationalists and Federalists. Each party held a Caucus and a primary election to choose their candidate for the general election. In both Boys' and Girls' State the Nationalists Party won the Governor's chair and a majority in the Senate and House of Representatives.

Linda Anderson won the primary election for the House of Representatives in the Federalists party, but was defeated along with other party members in the general election.

Leslie Dickinson ran for Governor for the Federalists, was defeated before the primaries, got in the primaries as a candidate for Clerk of Court, was defeated in the general election but later received appointment as assistant State Historian.

Both Girls' and Boys' State held very impressive graduation ceremonies at which all representatives received a diploma and an alumni card.

Linda and Dickie spoke before the P. T. A. on September 10, 1962, about their experiences at their respective states and will speak again this spring before a school assembly.
